How often do you go food shopping? If you don't go very often, you probably have no idea of the techniques supermarkets use to make consumers spend their money. Read on to find out more.

1 _____

Do you know why supermarkets give people something to put their shopping in? It's so that they can buy more things. It also means that shoppers have their hands free to take things off the shelves. People usually don't realize how much they are buying when they use a basket or a supermarket trolley.

2 _____

Where do supermarkets put the products you use every day? At the back of the shop. Dairy products and bread are always as far as possible from the door. This is to make people walk through the shop and buy things they don't need.

3 _____

Where are the cheapest products? Yes, they're in the last place you look: on the bottom shelf. The shelves at eye level are where you can find the most expensive products. Healthier products are on the top shelf and then there's a special shelf for children's products.

4 _____

Why do supermarkets play music? Not to make your shopping experience more pleasant! Supermarkets know that music influences the way we shop. Slow music makes shoppers take their time and spend more money. And when consumers hear classical music, they buy more expensive items.

Why are there always sweets and snacks next to the checkout? To make sure that you see them. There's usually a queue when you're waiting to pay. People pick up chocolate bars while they're waiting because they're bored, not because they really want them.

So, now you know the techniques, you can help your family save some money!
